“ Dear Dad, this one is hard to cope with. 49 years of you & mommy is Amazing. I remember when you first tried to teach me how to drive back in 1987. In Eastside high school parking lot. You was as nervous as me because I was heavy on the gas pedal and ended up on the sidewalk with a busted tire in the green van. I was 17 at the time. I remember all the Christmases y'all all know I love music because of y'all. You've always bought me radios and such. Dad you've played a very big part in my life. You've molded me into the person I am today. Hard working, Family Oriented, love to fix things. And most of all humble. You will be missed. I love you because you first loved my Mother. And now that you're gone it's my duty to step up and make sure my mommy is good, and taking care of. Until we meet again Dad rest easily and continue to watch over us. Your loving Son.

“ Dear Step Father,
No one knows how great of a STEP Father you have been to me. Although Step is in front of your name, that meant nothing to me. You've helped me, feed me, clothed and taught me, although STEP was in front of name, your love did that for me. You prayed for me, chastised me, and walked me through life, although STEP was in front of your name, your love did that for me. I thank God for the word STEP, because you have been there every STEP of the way for me. Your morals, your values, your principals and your wise council have helped me and kept me every STEP of the way. In life challenges, and love, you're STEPS has reminded me to live and love every day and every STEP of the way. MY FATHER, MY FATHER, MY FATHER, Willie James Salters Jr. my father. The Greatest FATHER this world will ever see and hear though me.

I love you, till we meet again in heaven, your child Punkey.

“ Dad I remember the day you took me to the Oakland raiders vs New York giants game. We sat at the 50 yard line enjoying the view of the ravishing and exhilarating event. Even though we didn't stay the whole game It was still amazing to have gone. Something we both shared was the love for sports specifically football. I will truly miss you dad you were a big inspiration and a huge motivation for me I love you. Tina
